Download Heroes 3 armageddon blade no-cd crack Julian Edelman knows this is a historic day for the New England Patriots, but he'll be happy to kick it off any day. "I'll kick off any day," he said. Edelman will make his AFC Championship Game debut Sunday at Gillette Stadium against the Jacksonville Jaguars in Super Bowl LIII, joining an exclusive club of tight ends and wide receivers to play in a Super Bowl. With 11 catches for 73 yards, Edelman has the only 100-yard receiving game of any member of this exclusive club in a Super Bowl. He accomplished this feat in Sunday's win over the Pittsburgh Steelers, and that in itself is significant. "If you look at how many guys have the ball, you wouldn't think that, but because everyone has a run game and you have to share the ball with Tom and Bill, he's been the No. 1 guy," said Patricia, who named Edelman as the game's MVP. "And I think that will always be his legacy. He's been so productive." Edelman might be just one of two tight ends to play in the Super Bowl, joining the Washington Redskins' Jordan Reed. Because Reed was so dominant in the postseason, his presence in the Super Bowl was made moot. According to Stats LLC, over the last decade, only four tight ends have played in at least one AFC title game and one Super Bowl: Reed, Martellus Bennett, Mike Ditka and Dwayne Allen. Edelman's catch of a 72-yard pass from Tom Brady accounted for a 21-point swing in the game's final quarter, when the Patriots ultimately posted a 46-21 victory over the Steelers. He became only the fifth active player to record
